Bank officials to invest $5 mil. in new facility following demolition

By Miranda M. Cantrell

Commercial Bank officials celebrated the grand opening of their Index branch with an Oct. 12 ribbon cutting ceremony that included financial and political dignitaries from throughout the state.

The 4,100-sq. ft. facility opened in May amid ongoing renovations by Frederick & May Construction employees, who transformed the former Dairy Cheer building into a fully-functional bank after the downtown Commercial Bank building was severely damaged by the March 2 tornado.

CEO Hank Allen — who was inside Commercial Bank when the tornado hit — said bank officials and employees resolved immediately to restore banking services even as some of them coped with personal devastation.

"I remember walking outside onto Main Street after the tornado was over and seeing total destruction," Allen said. "This community has come a long way since that night, and so has this bank. We committed ourselves to becoming operational as quickly as possible, and we opened for business the following Monday morning."

Employees worked in mobile locations at Index and downtown West Liberty as the Commercial Bank board of directors purchased the vacant Dairy Cheer building from McDonald's of Eastern Kentucky owner and fellow board member Bob Hutchinson, of Paintsville, for use as a permanent bank branch.

Allen announced that board members are currently planning the construction of a $5 million banking center in the downtown business district following the upcoming demolition of the current Commercial Bank building.

"This shows Commercial Bank's commitment to the community," Allen said. "The new bank will have new technology that will make that will make transactions quicker and simpler for customers. We also aim to make it one of the most energy-efficient facilities in the region."

Allen noted in an Oct. 15 interview that construction is slated to begin early 2013 with completion projected during the following 18-24 months.

The CEO also thanked bank employees before he introduced Kentucky Department of Financial Institutes Commissioner Charles Vice, who lauded Commercial Bank's long-standing efforts to establish solid relationships that proved essential to the institution's recovery process.

"Many banks came to Commercial Bank's aid in the tornado aftermath," Vice said. "That is because of the relationships

Community foundation is established to support local long-term projects

Local advisory board to work in conjunction with Lexington org.

By Miranda M. Cantrell

A contingency of local government and commerce leaders convened on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Morehead State University Regional Enterprise Center to announce the establishment of a community foundation for the long-term betterment of Morgan County.

Officials from local government agencies, Commercial Bank, Bank of the Mountains, Morgan County ARH and Gateway Area Development District hosted Blue Grass Community Foundation representatives from Lexington, who extolled the benefits of charitable endowment funds.

The fund will be managed by the Blue Grass Community Foundation, which also oversees community foundations in Magoffin and other Eastern Kentucky counties.

Judge Executive Tim Conley noted that the foundation is supported by a planning grant from the Berea's Brushy Fork Institute in partnership with the Appalachian Regional Commission and the Appalachian Rural Development Philanthropy Initiative.

"This foundation will help us develop long-term financial strategies," Conley said. "We are meeting immediate needs with the relief funds donated to the Long-Term Recovery Team, Christian Social Services, etc., but eventually those funds will be depleted.

"Once those funds are gone, an endowment fund can help us build the best and most prosperous community possible for future generations."

Blue Grass Community Foundation Vice President Allison Lankford, of Lexington, said that an endowment fund would act as a community "savings account" for charitable dollars donated from within and outside Morgan County.

Planning, zoning commission hears concerns at mtg.

Citizens raise questions about future of city and community as a whole

By Miranda M. Cantrell

The West Liberty Planning and Zoning Commission conducted a public meeting on Monday, Oct. 15, to begin the process of developing a comprehensive plan to guide land use within city limits for the next five years.

Commission members addressed approximately 40 citizens, who voiced questions and concerns regarding zoning plans and other post-tornado issues.

Member Judy Elam opened the hearing with an extensive history of the planning and zoning commission, which was established in 1996 with members appointed by former mayor Scott Wells.

Elam described the plan — which must be updated every five years and approved by the city council — as a tool for addressing the future growth or decline of a community.

"The commission doesn't want to dictate," Elam said. "We want to guide, and will use an all-inclusive approach to produce a formal document that will be presented to the city council for approval."

Chairman Joe Curd noted that the organization will address the following plan tenets during a series of public meetings — the first of which will be conducted 6 p.m. Monday, Oct. 29, at City Hall:

- Goals and objectives: To promote the physical and economic development and social well-being of the community.
- Land use: To determine the manner in which community members should use public and private land.
- Transportation: To determine the most desirable and feasible patterns for traffic routes.
- Community facilities: To determine the most desirable and feasible patterns for public and semi-public buildings, land and facilities.

Member Jodi Stacy emphasized that public input is crucial to the plan's development.

"This is a community-wide effort," Stacy said. "Everyone has a right to speak out and share their opinions. Input is needed to determine the direction of the comprehensive plan as we rebuild our town. Residents and property owners need to be involved. If you like or dislike a proposal, we want you to say so. It is important to establish a plan we can all rally behind."

The commission opened the floor for comments, which included a question from tornado victim Helen Lewis — who is attempting to rebuild her home where it once stood on Glenn Avenue — regarding the issuance of building permits since

Hazel Green man enrolled in social work program at MSU

Often times, non-traditional students who commit to furthering their education seek a new and exciting career change. That is not the case for Benny Easterling, 40, of Hazel Green. Easterling is currently enrolled in MSU's Social Work program, which was initiated by his previous work experience in the field.

"I graduated high school and originally enrolled in the social work program in 1989, but put that dream on hold when I got a job with Toyota. I left Toyota in 2003 and got a job with the Department of Juvenile Justice," Easterling reflects. "I have experience in the field, and a general interest. It helps me understand the content of the courses better because I can relate it to what I have experienced."

Easterling's decision to go back to school was intrinsically driven. After his two children became adults and started their own lives, he decided to focus on self-development. Easter-ling encourages prospective students to take control of their dreams and make an investment in themselves.

"Finishing my degree is something I always wanted to do. It is now my time. I am at a point in my life where it is possible and it seems like the right thing to do," said Easterling. "It's getting harder and harder to find a job without a college degree. It is so important in a demanding workforce. It may sound cliché, but a college degree is an investment in life."

Easterling is currently enrolled in MSU's social work program. He has taken several of his required courses at MSU at West Liberty campus and through MSU's online program. He aspires to complete his master's degree and perhaps later, teach college level courses, where he can share his real life experiences with students who will benefit from them.

"It has been a pleasure working with Benny, getting him settled back into the college routine," remarked Dr. Jonell Tobin. She continued, "He has been excited about how interesting the classes are, and how much easier they seem to be now, as compared to his previous college experience. I explained to him that taking the time to study and prepare for class makes the class seem easier and makes the discussion more interesting!"

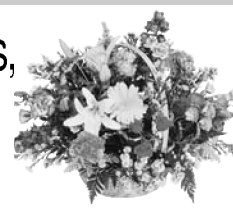

MSU at West Liberty will be hosting a Back to School Night for non-traditional students on Oct. 25th, from 4-7 p.m. There will be MSU representatives readily available to assist with financial aid and undergraduate applications, as well as representatives from career services. Application fees will be waived for those who participate. For more information regarding MSU at West Liberty's Back to School Night, contact MSU at West Liberty Director Dr. Jonell Tobin or Extended Campus Assistant Sherry Fannin at 606-743-1500.

Scores To Be Low?

Results Of First K-PREP Tests No Cause To Abandon Effort

Officials at Tuesday's Kentucky Board of Education were told the results of the state's new tests for public school students will not be released until late October or possibly even early November. The results had been anticipated for the middle of this month.

If the predictions of Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holiday are accurate, the delay could postpone the arrival of bad news for many school districts and their students. Holiday has been warning for months that students, parents, teachers and administrators should expect test scores to drop, perhaps even dramatically. In fact, during a tour of the state Holiday took with David Adkisson, president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, in June, the state's top public education executive expressed concern the scores will be so low that some members of the Kentucky General Assembly, school administrators, teachers and parents will call for the new tests to be scrapped and replaced with a revised version of the old state mandated tests.

That can't be allowed to happen, Holiday warned, and he's right. Backing away from the demanding new tests would be a step backwards for quality education in Kentucky.

Kentucky was one of the first states to adopt the ational corps of education standards, and the new K-PREP tests are based on new benchmarks established by those standards.

The tests are more difficult because the education expectations of students are higher. It is going to take awhile for Kentucky to adjust its classroom teaching to meet the higher standards, but it is a goal worth achieving. Too many students are graduating from high school lacking the basic skills they need for success in college and even the workplace. The only way to eliminate this negative is to raise our expectations.

If Kentucky were to lower its high standards in response to low test scores, it would be bowing to mediocrity. That's unacceptable.

We hope Holiday is wrong and the scores on the K-PREP will be much higher than he expects. But if they are not, we must not abandon the high expectations just because too few of our young people are reaching them. Instead, we must find a way to increase the achievements of our public schoolchildren. That's the only proper response to low test scores.

Cougars making our community proud as Kentucky takes notice

By David Patrick

There was a time when playing the number two ranked team in the state would have meant a miserably long night for Cougar football. Even the thoughts of Morgan County being competitive on such a high level would have been beyond comprehension. As recent as last season, this program was no match for one of Kentucky's elite programs, losing by a painful 54 points on a cold night in Jackson.

But this is not your typical Morgan County football team. This is a special group with expectations of winning and the talent to back it up. Last Friday, this Cougar team wasn't fazed by Breathitt's tradition, state ranking or legendary coach. Instead, Morgan saw this as a statement game, win or lose. And even in defeat, the Cougars sent a loud, clear message to the rest of Class 3-A that this team has the potential for a deep playoff run this November.

It's not easy to stare down an opponent that beat you without mercy just one year ago. It's even harder to mentally put that loss behind you and convince yourself it has no bearing on this year's game. I know Coach Brian Turner doesn't buy into the whole 'moral victory' theory, and understandably so. As a coach, you want your kids to expect winning, week in and week out, regardless of the opponent.

But for fans, the Cougars' heroic effort against Breathitt was a great source of pride. And for players, the game marked a confidence builder that Morgan is no lesser of a team than any the state has to offer. Cougar players have proven to themselves to be deserving of a serious state championship run. This same group of seniors that advanced to the Final Four of the state middle school tournament now have the opportunity to seek the same success at the high school level.

Should the Cougars beat district rival Magoffin on Friday night, the program will win its eighth game, tying a school record. But this team is not satisfied with sharing the mark, these players want to own that record all to themselves.

Anything short of nine wins and a home playoff game will be unacceptable to Morgan. But the Cougars won't stop at nine, they want 10, 11 and beyond, and there's every reason to believe that could happen. This group is set to go where no Cougar team has gone before. The level of success is up to them.

It's obviously been the perfect season for this remarkable success. Just over six months following an F-3 tornado that changed the lives of an entire county, the Cougars are doing their part to rebuild the community's spirit. Record crowds have turned out for the season's home games, including standing room only for the Sorghum Bowl game versus Jackson County, as well as, the mega-match up against Breathitt.

Fans have lined the bleachers, the bank, the fence line and sit atop car hoods in the parking lot to get a glimpse of this remarkable football team.

Media attention for the program may have begun as part of a sympathy story, but it's transformed into a documentary of success. Newspaper, radio and television have latched onto Morgan's impressive 7-1 record. In Louisville, the Associated Press has tagged the Cougars with a Top 10 state ranking. The KHSAA's individual and team statistics continue to have a strong Morgan County presence. With hard work and heart comes success. The Cougars are proving that out every day.

God has blessed Morgan County with a football team that will take its place among the best in school history. The only question that remains is will it be THE BEST? We'll get that answer as the following weeks unfold.

Good pay, independent culture, dislike of Obama make Appalachian coal miners 'proud to be scabs'

"As recently as the 1980s, plenty of coalfield residents thought Big Coal was the problem. But these days, in . . . Central Appalachia — southern West Virginia, southwestern Virginia, eastern Kentucky and eastern Tennessee — coal mining is overwhelmingly popular, despite well-documented risks to workers' health and community safety," reports Gabriel Schwartzman of In These Times, a liberal, labor-oriented magazine. (Photo by Schwartzman: Supervisory miner gets coffee before work)

Schwartzman spent this summer in the region trying to determine why the previous Democratic and union stronghold has turned so sharply to the right, and doesn't mince words in presenting his conclusion: "At $108,000 a year, nothing in Appalachia compares to miners' wages," he writes. Those wage increases are linked to increased mechanization and smaller workforces, and have changed the political and financial nature of that workforce, he reports. One miner in Pike County, Kentucky, told him he would lose everything if "coal was shut down" because no job in the region could pay him as much.

The union battles for higher wages, better safety and benefits of 30 years ago were largely lost, ultimately ending with the United Mine Workers of America abandoning strikes, Schwartzman writes. Companies raised wages without unions, but cut many jobs with increased mechanization. A major unionized company in the region, Patriot Coal, is now bankrupt and unable to pay miners' pensions.

Miners with jobs told Schwartzman the non-union life is good. "We are scabs. We're proud to be scabs," one surface miner at Camp Branch mine in West Virginia told him. They are loyal to their companies, and that loyalty extends to families, friends and businesses supported by coal miners, Schwartzman reports. But an Energy Information Administration forecast of a 58 percent decline in Central Appalachian coal production by 2035 is reason for many to worry. Though the current decline is mainly because of competition from cheap natural gas and the decreased viability of Appalachian coal, miners tend to believe increased environmental regulation is the cause.

Schwartzman reports intimidation and threats received by those who advocate for safer mining practices or oppose mountaintop-removal mining. "Social media is used as a mobilizing tool against 'tree huggers,'" Schwartzman reports. "Aside from calling rallies and protests, post like this August 6 one appear regularly on Citizens for Coal's Facebook

Many miners expressed to Schwartzman the need to vote out President Obama, even though his administration increased mine safety inspections aimed at reducing miner injuries; increased health care for black-lung victims, and increased investments in clean-coal technology. Schwartzman writes that coal companies stir up anti-Obama rhetoric, but the Christian right and the National Rifle Association also play a role. "Those forces play upon values of autonomy and independence that run deep here," Schwartzman writes. "For 150 years, these values have helped Appalachians survive outsiders exploiting their mountain resources. Now those values have become aligned with out-of-state coal companies against environmentalists and liberals."

Caney Valley News

By Tracey B. Hatton

Oct. 15--Hello again from Caney Valley. Boone and I were listening to a preacher the other evening on WLJC and during his sermon he made the comment the whole purpose that we were born was to have a relationship with God. Our purpose is to have the relationship with God the Father, through Jesus Christ, His son. In Ecclesiastes 2:13, "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter. Fear God and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man." In Romans 12:1-2, "I Beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God."

We have many preachers that preach so diligent to get them message across to people. Salvation is preached throughout the Bible. God uses messengers (preachers) to feed the flock. Paul wrote to Timothy in the 2nd letter 4:34, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts, shall they heap to themselves teachers have itching ears and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." We are living in a time that people are wanting a "fast-food" religion, they want a "whatever goes" religion and they want to have that "feel-good, warm and fuzzy" religion. The best religion I know is Jesus Christ. He is the one who died for me and he also died for you. His death on the cross was cruel and inhuman punishment, but even before he died on that cross, he was beat, whipped, stripped, spit upon, ridiculed. This is a serious time in your life. You need to take a stand for what is right and do your reasonable service as Paul was talking about. The best recipe is to hear the worse, search the scripture for oneself. Don't depend on someone else to give you your religion or spiritual food. You need to accept the Lord as your saviour, then assembled yourself together with other Christians, go to church and be fed by the preacher. Don't go on the religion of Paw paw and maw maw, don't go on the religion of mommy and daddy, don't go on the religion of your spouse, but in the scriptures you will find what you need. It is manna for your soul. I am not disrespecting families in no way, shape or form, but it is your responsibility as a Christian to have a prayer life, read your Bible and learn, and go to church and hear the preaching of the gospel. What is the purpose of our life? I can answer that in two words: SERVE GOD!!

On Saturday, Boone and I were out and about and seen several neighbors. It was a beautiful day for fall. The leaves are changing and beginning to fall to the ground. We stopped in to see Uncle Woodford and Aunt Berchlene. They were doing well. We then stopped by Jimmy and Sue Vance's home. Sue wanted to share some news to put in the paper. She said all her children were home for the Sorghum Festival along with their spouses. She also said that her nephew, Retired Colonel Richard Lee Johnston and wife, Belinda, were in from San Antonio, Texas for the festival. Sue said that Sonny, her son, took her to see a play that was put on by the Morehead Theatre Guild. The name of the play was the Tollivar-Martin Feud. Two of her family members had parts in this play. Her grandson, Royce Kendall Vance, and her son-in-law, Buffy Litteral. Sue said that each showing has been sold out. She was so proud of her family, I had asked about Kristen and Adair Lawson's children. I knew that they had the little boy. She said they have two children, Steven Quinn and Harper Victoria. Harper Victoria is named after her mother and her great-great grandmother.

Condolences go out to the family of Woodrow Salyer. I knew Woodrow and Irene many years. I went to school with their son, Gerald, and he was like a brother to me and my sisters. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend the funeral. My prayers are with his family and may God comfort your heart.

Prayer requests: Jim Sparks, Bro. Hobart Dunn, Gordon King, Andrea Vance, Woodrow Salyer family, Bro. Bud Angus, Bernice Potter, Ryan Stacy, Glenn Crase, Georgia Taulbee, Joshua Dye, Bro. James Allen, Bro. Tim and Sarilda Clark, Adam Allen, Larry Allen, Everene Havens, Stanley and Avanel Whisman, Jack Flannery, Patty and Cecil Griffin, Berchlene and Woodford Henry, Dorothy Elam, Joanie and Harold Barker, Timothy Vance, Edith Fife, Tabby Conley, Shirley Stevens, Troy Sanders, Jon Sanders, Rhonda Ison, Mildred Mays, Wayne and Della Banks.

Happy birthdays: Bernice Robinson, Cecil Griffin, Jesse Reed, Margaret Wallace, Terry Sandy, Jerry Phipps, Betty Jo Montgomery.

Cecil had his 72nd birthday Sunday. He had a good day and mom had baked him a white chocolate cake with homemade icing. It was quite delicious.

Happy anniversary: Tommy and Denise Reed.

Congratulations to Jackie Vance on his acceptance as the Lord as his saviour on Sunday morning at Brushy Fork Church. He is the son of Treva King. Be in prayer for him.

Congratulations to Evelyn Howard on accepting the Lord as her saviour and on her baptism this past Sunday evening. Be in prayer for her.

We, as Christians, need to lift our brothers and sisters up in prayer. We need to pray for a hedge to surround them and for satan to flee from them. We can always pray on behalf of people, but the prayer we cannot pray is the one that a lost person has to pray; and that is the prayer of repentance.

May the Lord bless and keep you.

Ectopic Heart Beats: How Serious?

Elaine's heart just wouldn't let her rest. Driving the car, working in the garden, talking on the phone or lying in bed, she was acutely aware of the thumping, flopping feeling inside her chest.

After performing necessary tests, Elaine's doctor assured her that her heart was sound and that the irregular heart beats she was experiencing posed no threat to her health. But there was still the matter of rest; the thumping and pounding were keeping her awake at night and making it hard for her to concentrate on anything.

Ectopic or abnormal heart beats are common, occurring in nearly every adult from time to time. An occasional irregular beat may go unnoticed or be felt as a brief fluttering or odd feeling in the chest. Often referred to as "skipped beats," they actually represent extra contractions that occur just before the natural beat.

Many persons, like Elaine, have hundreds of these contractions every day sometimes accompanied by chest pain, dizziness or other symptoms that may send them rushing to the emergency room, fearing a heart attack.

Most ectopic beats are either PVCs (premature ventricular contractions) or PACs (premature atrial contractions) depending on where they originate. The heart is made up of four chambers—two upper chambers or "atria" and two lower chambers known as "ventricles." Premature ventricular contractions occur in the lower chambers and PACs in the upper.

In most cases, PVCs and PACs are entirely normal, but persons feeling symptoms such as Elaine's should see a doctor, if for no other reason than to ease their minds.

Abnormal contractions can, in fact, be caused by a heart attack, an inflamed heart or a problem with heart valves such mitral valve prolapse.

To rule out these causes, a doctor is likely to perform a physical examination and order tests such as an EKG (electrocardiogram), echocardiogram and/or an exercise stress test. One way of detecting the irregular beats and distinguishing them from more serious heart rhythm problems is through having the patient wear a Holter monitor or event recorder to track the heart's rhythm while the person is involved in every day activities.

A blood test can detect abnormalities in cardiac enzymes that might signal heart muscle damage or electrolyte imbalances that might be contributing to the problem. It can also rule out causes such as a hyperactive thyroid, drug toxicity or abuse of cocaine or amphetamines.

Many of the possible causes of PVCs and PACs are serious medical conditions that require prompt treatment. And it's important to distinguish irregular beats from a more serious irregular rhythm such as atrial fibrillation.

Atrial fibrillation causes pooling of blood in the upper chambers of the heart, creating the risk of blood clots and a stroke. Premature contractions, on the other hand, do not interfere with the heart's normal rhythm in this way.

Reasons for the ectopic beats are not always easy to find. They could result from age-related diseases or changes in the heart or other organs of the body. Or, more likely, they are related to anxiety, stress or lifestyle issues such as smoking, diet or caffeine or alcohol use.

In an otherwise healthy person, even very frequent ectopic beats are no reason for concern, although the patient may want treatment to relieve the symptoms.

Triggers vary from person to person, but patients are usually advised to quit smoking and to cut back on or eliminate caffeine and alcohol use. In many individuals, regular exercise can help regulate heart beats as well as reduce stress and contribute to better overall health. Bethany Lucas, MD

For most individuals, the most important treatment is stress reduction through controlled breathing, yoga, meditation or biofeedback. Simply knowing the ectopic beats are normal and no cause for alarm goes a long way toward relieving anxiety.

Serious palpitations such as those Elaine was experiencing usually require some medical treatment, often with a beta blocker or a calcium channel blocker.

What patients experiencing vigorous thumping in the chest tend to fear most is that their hearts will go out of control. An arrhythmia in the lower chambers of the heart, known as ventricular fibrillation, a life threatening condition.

PVCs can occur in persons with severe heart problems that create a risk of ventricular fibrillation. But if you have a healthy heart with abnormal beats, you should rest assured that your heart is not going out of control.

THINK ON THESE THINGS

If you are ever plagued with doubt, and question whether God's about. Try thinking on some simple things. You'll be surprised the peace it brings. A sleeping child, a summer's day. A puppy awkward in its play. The clean washed air that follows rain. A diamond-frosted window pane, an apple tree all pink and white. The stillness of a starlit night, a fire crackling on the hearth. The smell of freshly spaded earth, a trail you knew once long ago, a picket fence high capped with snow, a song your mother used to sing. Why you can pick most any thing and you will find your answer there. It's still God's world--He's everywhere.

Childrens Theatre performs at area elementary schools

The highly acclaimed Lexington Children's Theatre recently performed for elementary students in Menifee, Morgan, and Wolfe Counties. This was made possible by a partnership between the Robinson Scholars Program, Mountain Rural Telephone Company, the schools in the region, and the Appalachian Heritage Alliance. The Lexington Children's Theatre has a long history of turning great literature into great theater. Elementary students had the opportunity to see either Aesop's Fables or The Adventures of Tom Sawyer.

Many of the teachers made the most of this educational arts experience. Their students read the stories that were performed on stage and followed up with writing activities inspired by the performances.

The Wolfe County Farm Bureau Insurance contributed to the program to enable us to stretch the funds to include a performance at the Wolfe County Middle School.

The Appalachian Heritage Alliance is deeply grateful to the Robinson Scholars Program, Mountain Rural Telephone Company, Wolfe County Farm Bureau Insurance, and each of the principals and teachers for making this program possible for students in the region.

Light Bulb Art Project

Learning Center marks Lights On Afterschool

The afterschool students at West Liberty and East Valley Elementary Schools are celebrating "Lights On Afterschool" with an art project in October. Each student will paint and hang from the ceiling a wooden cutout of a light bulb symbolizing their "Lights On Afterschool." On October 18, students and staff are asking everyone to turn their porch lights on in support of the Afterschool Program.

Lights On Afterschool is celebrated nationwide to call attention to the importance of afterschool programs for America's children, families and communities.

In America today, one in four youths -- 15.1 million children -- are alone and unsupervised after school. Afterschool programs keep kids safe, help working families and inspire learning. They provide opportunities to help young people develop into successful adults.

Lights On Afterschool is a project of the Afterschool Alliance, a nonprofit organization dedicated to ensuring that all children have access to quality, affordable afterschool programs. Former Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger has served as Chair of Lights On Afterschool since 2001.

The Afterschool Alliance salutes the many Lights On Afterschool partners and programs who make this event a success, in particular the After-School All-Stars, Boys & Girls Clubs of America, 4-H Afterschool, Junior Achievement, the 21st Century Community Learning Centers, Young Rembrandts, and the YMCA of the USA.

Psalm 24:1-5 The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods. Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the Lord, and righteousness from the Lord of his salvation.

We had the Sons of Liberty singing in our morning service and were blessed by the way they presented the gospel through their singing. It was a spiritual service with the presence of the Lord so real. Everyone enjoyed a fine potluck meal after the service. We will have one more singing this year in November on Saturday the 17th starting at 6:00 with the Jackson Family, you will not want to miss it.

We invite all to come worship with us, our time of worship are: Sunday school at 10:00, morning worship at 11:00, evening service at 6:00, Wednesday evening at 6:00, and Youth meeting at 6:00 on Thursday. If you have prayer requests or comments call 743-4736 or email karleecelam@hotmail.com, we'll be glad to hear from you. Until next week, may the Lord bless you is our prayer.

A Kind & Giving Spirit

By Louise Long

Cancer, one of our deadliest diseases took the life of our friend, Wanda Handy, on September 20, 2012.

Wanda Jean was born in Menifee County, Blankenship was her maiden name. I know nothing of her childhood. Her sisters related to me that the young man who became her husband said he would walk to their home to see Wanda. We would always run out the road to meet him. They also stated that Junior had carved their initials in a tree nearby.

I came to know Wanda when she and my husband (Henry) worked at the Campton Dry Cleaners. When Henry and I wed we couldn't rent a house because we had no furniture. She and Junior had moved into a small trailer, and she let us have a lot of her furniture. It was plenty for the three roomed house we rented. At Christmas she bought our baby girl a beautiful dress. It was really beautiful and so needed.

Wanda worked hard all of her life. I know that she worked at the Bus Station, Campton Dry Cleaners, and Lycoming Shoe Company and U.S. Shoe Company for over 25 years. She then worked in the welding building at CMS in Stanton until a layoff ended the job. She then worked at Whiting Manufacturing near Hazel Green and finally at Accent Power in Campton.

Wanda, never was one to be idle, had purchased a quilting machine. Using that machine she developed a very profitable home quilting business. She had quilted some very unique quilt tops. We are fortunate to have several that she quilted for us.

Wanda always raised large gardens from which she canned hundreds of jars of produce. She had freezers full of venison and other meats ready to prepare. Cooking large meals was the norm for her, and if you were there at meal time, you were going to eat.

Wanda was born a loving and giving spirit. One of her sorrows was that she could not bear children. Consequently, they adopted a son, and she had a large hand in raising another child. She loved them both and wanted the best for them.

If there was any way she could help you, she did so without expectation of a reward. Money and wordly things were not what she was about. She worked hard to be able to help pay for their farm and to buy the necessities of life. However, whatever she had she was always willing to share with others who were in need. We considered her our friend, and was very thankful to have her in our lives.

Wanda your work is done. Take your well deserved rest, for we will meet you again soon.

PUNCH AND JUDY SHOW. During one of the years after the Civil War, an itinerant entertainer came to Morgan County and put on a "show"--one of the first that the Walters Elam family had seen.

The showman's name was Nick Teets. He would both lodge and give performances at a house in the neighborhood, in return for which all the members of that family would receive free admission. Teets returned to the community on several occasions and usually made the Elam home "his headquarters," recalls Walters Elam's grandson, Shelby S. Elam, in his memoir, Kentucky Thru Thick and Thin (1955).

For his show he "screened himself from his audience with a sheet while he performed with his Punch and Judy dolls." That is a classic English puppet entertainment known as a Punch-and-Judy show, wherein Punch quarrels comically and violently with his wife Judy. (Still performed, the show is of Italian origin, "Punch" being an abbreviation of Punchinello.)

Nick Teets became "a welcome visitor"--not only to the community but also to the home that sponsored him. A handsome and worldly wise young man, he struck up a relationship with Walters Elam's daughter, Nancy. She was as smitten as he, but friends and relatives opposed her marriage to an outsider. However, her Uncle Bob Nickell advised her to follow her heart, and so she did. Husband and wife set to work, and soon they had a wagon and horse to take their show on the road.

In time, it grew into a multi-wagon show, discussed in the next Historical Sketches at "Teets Brothers' Circus." Sometimes it returned to Morgan County, where it had all begun with a little Punch-and-Judy show and a young couple determined to live out a dream.

MORGAN COUNTY FOOTBALL

Cougars make Breathitt earn this one

Bobcats use third quarter rally to turn away scrappy Morgan on senior night

By David Patrick

3Any thoughts that Breathitt County had that last Friday's game was going to be as easy as the 2011 blowout were quickly contradicted by the Cougars. Coach Brian Turner's team took the fight to the Bobcats, trailing only 7-6 at the half before falling on the short end of a 27-12 final at Herdman Field.

Just one year after being intimidated and thoroughly dominated by a superior Bobcat squad, Morgan was clearly a team to be reckoned with. From Jordan Whitt's key fumble recovery to halt Breathitt's first drive to Kody Thornsberry's gutsy touchdown run on fourth down and goal, the Cougars' fight and desire more than matched that of the Bobcats.

"I knew these kids were well beyond the whole intimidation thing," Turner said. "While I'm not into moral victories, I do know we played hard and pushed Breathitt deep into the second half. There was no quit with our football team. I'm proud of that."

The Cougars knew going in beating Breathitt required containing senior quarterback Richard Trent, who'd already accounted for more than 2,000 yards of total offense this season. And while Morgan did manage to contain Trent, he was still the difference in the game, scoring on a 16-yard keeper for the early 7-0 lead.

But Morgan would answer with a touchdown of its own, set up by a 20 run by Thornsberry and the aforementioned scoring run by Morgan's star running back. After a failed two-point conversion, Breathitt maintained a slim one point lead. The Bobcats' attempt to add another score before the half was turned away by a clutch interception by Jordan Whitt deep in Cougar territory. Breathitt settled for the one-point cushion at the break.

But the 'Cats would use the third period to finally gain some separation. A 44-yard scoring run from Trent made it 14-6 at the 4:18 mark. One possession later, Trent then reeled off a 25 yard gain before scoring from five yards out to make it 21-6. The Breathitt quarterback added his fourth touchdown with 3:40 remaining in the fourth.

Morgan had one last march on its final drive, culminating with a Larrin Collins scoring pass to Thornsberry in the left corner of the end zone, making for the 27-12 final.

Offense was tough to come by for both teams, but Thornsberry still managed 106 rushing Larrin Collins completed 3-of-5 passes for 56 yards and a TD vs. Breathitt Co.

yards and another 49 through the air. Collins completed three-of-five passes for 56 yards. As a team, Morgan finished with 235 yards of total offense, including 179 on the ground.

Defensively, Whitt paced the Cougar effort with nine tackles, including five solos. Nick Adams and JT Brown picked up six apiece.

Jordan Whitt was Morgan's defensive ace against Breathitt, with an interception and fumble recovery

Morgan's newly achieved Class 3-A Top 10 state ranking should see little affect from the loss. The Cougars came into the game a four touchdown underdog, but proved themselves worthy of the lofty ranking. There's certainly no shame in losing to the state's second ranked team, especially considering Morgan's fate wasn't decided until the fourth period.

Home field advantage at stake as Cougars travel to Magoffin

Hosting a playoff game, staying on track for single season win record keeps Morgan focused

By David Patrick

Of all the things there is to know about this Friday's Morgan-Magoffin game in Salyersville, there's only one you need to know. This is absolutely the most important game of the season for Cougar football.

So how can this be more important than the Breathitt game? How could beating the Hornets be mentioned in the same breath with the opportunity of taking down the state's #2 ranked Class 3-A team?

The answer lies with what's at stake. Morgan and Breathitt played last Friday for essentially the District 7 championship and a guaranteed home playoff game. After a valiant effort which fell short of an upset, the Cougars fell out of the first place tie, which brings us to the critical importance of Friday's game.

Despite Morgan's more impressive overall record (7-1 compared to Magoffin's 4-4), both teams sport identical 3-1 district marks, meaning a tie for second place. And it's that second seeded team that will be assured of a first-round home game in the post season—a goal given top priority both last season and now here in 2012.

"This is certainly a must-win for our football program," Cougar head coach Brian Turner said this week. "We cannot reach the goals that we've set forth without beating Magoffin. Last season, we achieved our goal of a home playoff game and want to do that again. Beating Magoffin is the only way that happens."

On paper, Morgan will be the favorite on Friday night, but it won't be easy. Magoffin is also seeking a home playoff game. For added incentive, the Hornets could achieve that on senior night.

"The Salyersville community is much like ours here in West Liberty," Turner said. "Their kids have endured a lot this year having also been affected by the tornado. This would be special for them to earn a playoff game after so much heartache. We're all playing for the same thing."

Hosting a playoff game is a great benefit from beating Magoffin, but it's not the only thing. Morgan's other goal this season is to break the school's all-time single season win record, which currently stands at eight. A victory Friday night ties the mark, which could then be broken in the season finale at East Carter.

"Nine wins is a big deal for this football team," Turner said. "Last season, we fell just short of that goal and it's important for these kids to get another shot. We know what it takes to get there. It's time to make it happen."

Morgan's match up with Magoffin will kick-off at 7:30 Friday night in Salyersville.

There are versions, written after the flag folding protocol was given, as to the significance of each of the 13 folds when the American flag is folded. Even though it is not deemed "official," the version that the Boy Scouts of American have adopted, is very touching.

Kentucky unemployment rate up slightly in August

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 20 — Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate in August 2012 increased to 8.5 percent from a revised 8.3 percent in July 2012, according to the Office of Employment and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

The preliminary August 2012 jobless rate was 1.1 percentage points below the 9.6 percent rate recorded for the state in August 2011.

The U.S. seasonally adjusted jobless rate fell to 8.1 percent in August 2012 from 8.3 percent in July 2012, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Labor force statistics, including the unemployment rate, are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

In August 2012, Kentucky's civilian labor force was 2,068,631, an increase of 2,201 individuals compared to the previous month.

"An uptick in the unemployment rate, especially when accompanied by a drop in the number of people employed, does cause some anxiety," said economist Manoj Shanker of the OET. "But given the sluggish national economy and the recent strength of the Kentucky economy some fallback was expected."

Kentucky's seasonally adjusted nonfarm employment added 2,500 jobs in August 2012 from the previous month. On an over-the-year basis, the state's nonfarm employment has grown by 2.1 percent with the addition of 38,500 jobs.

Nonfarm data is provided by the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Current Employment Statistics program. According to this survey, seven of Kentucky's 11 major nonfarm North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) job sectors registered gains in employment, while four declined.

Kentucky's trade, transportation and utilities sector gained 2,100 jobs in August 2012. This is the largest sector in Kentucky with 368,900 positions, and accounts for about 20 percent of nonfarm employment. Since August 2011, jobs in this sector have increased by 5,500.

"Auto sales have been gaining momentum nationally. The demand has not only increased manufacturing employment, but boosted retail and wholesale trade employment, too," said Shanker.

The government sector, which includes public education, public administration agencies and state-owned hospitals, added 800 jobs in August 2012. The sector had 500 fewer jobs compared to August 2011.

Employment in the mining and logging sector went up by 200 from July 2012 to August 2012. The number of jobs in this sector has dropped by 1,600 or 7 percent since last August.

"The glut of natural gas in the U.S. market has put downward pressure on the price and production of coal," said Shanker.

Construction jobs rose by 200 in August 2012 from a month ago. Since August 2011, employment in construction has fallen by 3,400 positions or 5 percent.

"This is the fifth consecutive month that over-the-year construction employment has dropped. The slow recovery in the housing market has damped job growth in this industry and in other sectors connected to it such as financial activities," said Shanker.

The information sector added 100 jobs in August 2012. This segment has 1,000 more positions compared to August 2011. The industries in this sector include traditional publishing as well as software publishing; motion pictures and broadcasting; and telecommunications.

sector lost 500 jobs in August 2012 compared to the previous month. Since August 2011, employment in manufacturing has increased by 7,600 jobs or nearly 4 percent.

"On a year-to-year basis manufacturing employment has increased for 25 straight months. The growth has been primarily in the durable goods subsector," said Shanker. "The outlook for manufacturing durables is promising as long as domestic demand continues to offset the faltering demand from the European market."

"While the professional and business services sector faltered some since July 2012, the temporary service subsector grew a robust 12 percent from a year ago. The recent decline isn't worrisome because it is most likely payback from the strong hiring earlier this year," said Shanker.

Employment in the educational and health services sector fell by 800 jobs in August 2012. The sector has posted a gain of 4,200 jobs since August 2011.

"The decline from last month came from the health care portion of this sector which accounts for nearly 90 percent of the employment in this sector," Shanker said. "Health care employment is stabilizing as private insurance companies, as well as the government, are ratcheting down health care reimbursements. Providers are responding by consolidating and trimming employment."
